April 2010

I would like to start off by saying it has been both an honor and a privilege to have served this great organization as your President this past year. I would like to thank you all for intrusting me to carry forward our vision, mission and goals. I believe we have had an outstanding year, especially when consider the difficult economic landscape we have been faced with.

It has been another busy year and time just seems to slip away. However, we were able to accomplish several important goals as an organization. One in particular was our first ever “free” Summer School of Instruction program held at Graves Mountain Lodge on July 31, 2009. This was an unprecedented event in which the Association provided a full day of training and classes, along with lunch, for its members at no cost to them. This was our way of giving back to our members and thanking them for all their support over the years.

Other accomplishments include our continued productive relationship with DHCD and other industry partners. I would like to recognize DHCD for their sustained support and participation in our organization. We also partnered with ICC and the Region VII chapter (including MD, DC, PA, DE, NJ and WV) in conference planning for the 2009 Annual Business Meeting and code development hearings held in Baltimore, Maryland. The benefits of this endeavor proved a tremendous value to Virginia. It is part of our strategic plan and initiatives to outreach on all levels with our industry. This was the perfect venue for interacting and networking with code officials from across the country; not to mention it provided new friends and enabled great professional relationships to continue to grow.

The organization also redesigned its web site with a completely different look. We have provided easier access to information such as printable registration forms, agendas, and meeting minutes. We also purchased a lap top computer complete with a recorder and scan program to be used for meetings. The scan program allows us to develop a data base to track our member’s training and education hours for all our sponsored meetings and classes. In the near future we hope to be connected directly to DHCD which will permit automatic tracking of certified inspector/plan reviewer required CEU’s.

I want to extend a mention of congratulations to two of our members for achieving milestones in their careers this past year. Bill Dupler was elected Secretary/Treasurer and Guy Tomberlin Director of the ICC. Congratulations go out to both of you. This was a well deserved accomplishment for all of your hard work and dedication to our industry. This is a great honor and with that comes a lot of responsibility. I know you are both up to the task and will more than fulfill your commitments.

As you are aware VPMIA operates solely on the volunteerism of our members and the local jurisdictions across the state. This year we have instituted a mentoring program for those of you who want to get involved but are somewhat hesitant because you’re not quite sure what is expected. This is a perfect solution! Anyone interested in stepping up to work on committees or possibly chair a committee is encouraged to take full advantage of this program. Our current committee chairperson(s) will mentor you. This is designed to assist you in preparation with increased service in what ever capacity you can provide to the organization. This is an opportunity you don’t want to miss. What better way to learn and understand the operation of the organization than by getting information first hand from the people who currently serve on the Board of Directors. This is on–the–job training at its best with only a small investment of your time. The rewards you receive will be endless.

In closing, it has been a great honor and privilege to have served this organization over the past year as your President. I want to extend a heartfelt “thanks” to everyone for their time, commitment and dedication, striving towards making VPMIA a better organization. You have stayed focused on our vision, mission and goals working within our strategic plan to help make Virginia a better place to live, work and visit. It doesn’t matter what anybody says about being a good leader because a good leader can only take you so far. You must have a strong core group willing to help and assist when needed. I believe that is who we are and that’s why we are successful! I look forward to continuing to serve in any way I can as we move into the future.

Sincerely submitted,

Wayne Kushner, President
Virginia Plumbing and Mechanical Inspectors Association

Dedication

Ernest “Bud” Lester, 1940-2010, VPMIA Life Member

— A Life Remembered —

On January 18, 2010, VPMIA lost one of its long-time, valued members and friends, Bud Lester. He was born January 15, 1933, in Buchanan, Virginia, to the late Dallas and Mae Lester. Bud was a loving father to two daughters, Jackye Boyd and the late Patricia Monaco, grandfather to Lee Edward Monaco and one great-grandson.

In 1953 Bud began his plumbing career employed with Fred Borden, Inc. where he started as an apprentice and worked his way up to superintendant. In 1964, after more than ten years in the plumbing field, he ventured out and started Lester Plumbing, Heating, Cooling and Electrical Contracting, but traded under the name Lester Building Developers. His firm provided total contracting, including land acquisition (he was also a licensed Realtor), excavating, home design and construction. In 1974 Bud began an illustrious career with Fairfax County. He was a Senior Plumbing Inspector for four years before moving into a Plan Examiner position in 1978 where he served for two years. He was promoted to Field Supervisor in 1980 and moved up again to Assistant Chief Plumbing Inspector in 1985. In 1988 he became the Chief Plumbing Inspector where he served until his retirement in 1993. After his retirement from Fairfax County, Bud continued to do what he loved, sharing his vast plumbing knowledge as a general consultant to the plumbing community.

Bud began his service to VPIA (well before the M was added to incorporate mechanical) in the early 1980s and was recognized with the organizations highest level of accomplishment in 1993, the D. Paul Jack “Lifetime Achievement/Membership” award. Bud chaired the code committee for the organization and participated on the committee for more than 10 years. Bud also was a member of the Virginia Cross Connection Control Association. He often expressed that some of his most rewarding experiences were serving on the BOCA Code Development Committees, Plumbing Test Writing Committees, and serving as a committee member when the first International Plumbing Code was drafted.

But what Bud enjoyed the most was precisely what VPMIA is based on, education. He loved to share his knowledge and experiences by teaching the plumbing code. Bud was quoted in a trade magazine as saying, “code change hearings and serving on code committees are two areas that provide an excellent learning opportunity,” and, “even a simple dinner conversation or hallway gathering brings a wealth of information as you discover how others solve problems.” This has been true for years and Bud recognized the importance many years ahead of his time. It has been said that, because of Bud’s training, more than 1,000 plumbers successfully passed their master plumbing examinations. Although Bud probably wouldn’t have admitted it, he was a true mentor to both trade professionals and code officials across the state and nation. Bud believed that every experience was a learning opportunity, be it at a code change hearing or around the water cooler at work. He used to say, “There is always something new to be learned,” just as any good teacher would say.

His personal time was spent enjoying the company of his good friend and companion of many years, Jan Scheetz. Traveling was his passion and he loved to explore the country, especially out west in areas such as Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas. He was a licensed pilot and at one time owned his own airplane. He enjoyed motorcycles and once traveled cross country to California. He was an antique car enthusiast, enjoying the 1920’s models but had a special affinity for restoring 1960’s model Mustangs. Other hobbies included hunting, coin collecting, model trains, NASCAR races, and trips to Charlestown slots. He truly enjoyed life and was always determined to make the most of it.

Bud will be sorely missed but his legacy will remain for years to come.

REQUIREMENTS OF CIRCUIT

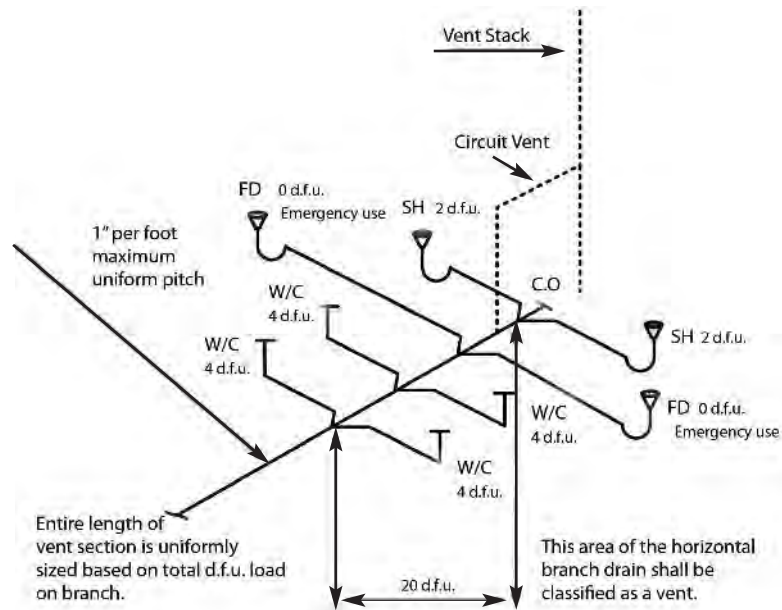

in the 2009 International Plumbing Code

Chapter 9 of the International Plumbing Code (IPC) has a variety of methods that can be used to vent plumbing fixtures and traps. Circuit venting is one of these methods and it has been laboratory and field tested, establishing a long history of satisfactory service. Extensive research into the performance of circuit vented systems was conducted at the State University of Iowa. The research concluded that the single vent for the eight fixtures provided the necessary protection of the trap seal. Circuit venting was included in Hunter's research and reported in BMS 66. The venting method has long been recognized by the plumbing community and is included in the American Society of Plumbing Engineers Data Book. The principle of circuit venting is that the flow of drainage never exceeds a half-full flow condition. The air for venting the fixtures circulates in the top half of the horizontal branch drain pipe. The flow velocity in the horizontal branch is slow and non-turbulent, thereby preventing pressure differentials from affecting the connecting fixtures. The circuit-vented fixtures must connect to the circuit-vented branch in the horizontal plane to limit the amount of turbulence created by fixture discharge.

Maximum Distance of Fixture Trap from Vent

Size of Trap (inches)	Slope (Inch per foot)	Distance from Trap (feet)
1-1/4	1/4	5
1-1/2	1/4	6
2	1/4	8
3	1/4	12
4	1/8	16

Sizing a Circuit Vent System

The Circuit Venting method is similar to wet venting except that it allows you to combine a total of eight fixtures on a single floor that are not limited to the two bathroom groups. It might be easier to explain by examining how circuit venting differs from wet venting. The fixture drains shall connect horizontally to the horizontal branch being circuit vented. Again, the fixture drains are limited in length to those shown in Table 906.1. Because circuit venting is only to be used on horizontal applications as opposed to wet venting, which can be both horizontal and vertical installations, the maximum slope for a circuit vent is 1 unit in 12 units horizontally, or 8-percent slope. The entire length of the circuit vent portion of the horizontal branch shall be sized for the total drainage discharge to the branch. There is not a unique sizing table for circuit venting as there is for wet venting or common venting.

VENTING

By Lee Clifton, PMG, Director of Plumbing Programs

The circuit vent connection must be located between the two uppermost fixture drains and shall connect to the horizontal branch. It cannot serve as a drain for other fixtures; it is truly a dry vent. Where a circuit vent consists of four or more water closets and discharges into a drainage stack that also receives the discharge of upper horizontal branches, a relief vent shall be connected to the horizontal branch ahead of the connection to the drainage stack and after the most downstream fixture drain of the circuit vent. Additional fixture drains may be connected with the circuit vented branch, but they need to be vented by means other than the circuit vent, and the FUVs would be added to the total fixture-unit discharge into the horizontal branch. Such fixtures also must be located on the same floor as the circuit vent to which they connect (see figure 2). Where the relief vent receives the discharge of other fixtures, the maximum discharge allowed is 4 drainage fixture units.

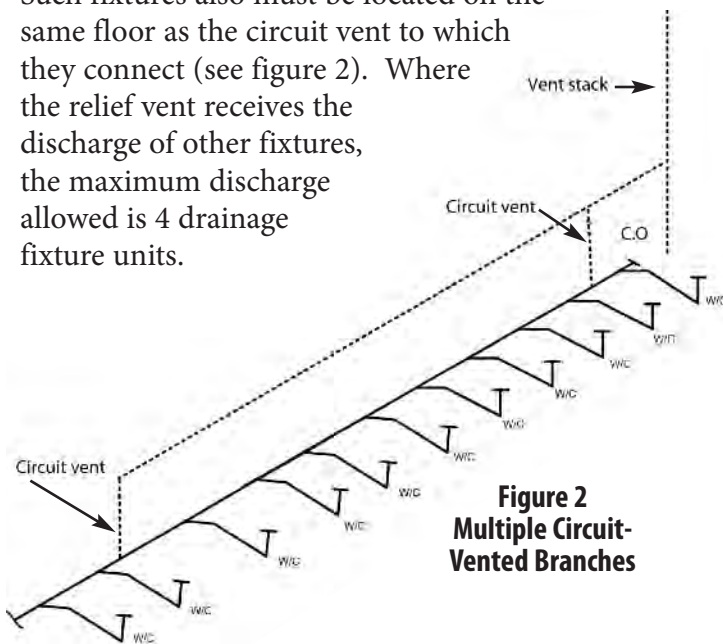

Figure 2
Multiple Circuit-
Vented Branches

In closing it is my hope that engineers, design professionals, contractors, journeymen plumbers, and inspectors will realize the many methods of venting that are available in the IPC. The IPC supports sustainable plumbing installations and is the only plumbing code that correlates with the International Energy Conservation Code (IECC), the most widely adopted energy code in the world.

The International Code Council is leading the way with many sustainable solutions across the entire building industry. Aside from the 2009 International Energy Conservation Codes which will be available soon, ICC and its members are working side-by-side to improve water efficiency practices across the building industry by staying on the leading edge of plumbing manufacturing technologies, specifying water-saving fixtures such as waterless urinals and proper pipe water and drainage sizing wherever possible, along with ensuring multiple sustainable plumbing codes are integrated into the upcoming 2009 International Plumbing Code. ♦

Lee Clifton is the Director of Plumbing Programs for the International Code Council, Plumbing & Mechanical Activities Section. He is presently located out of the Whittier, California Office. Lee comes to the Code Council from the City of Los Angeles. As a Principal Inspector with the City of Los Angeles, one of his recent duties included planning, organizing and coordinating the training programs for approximately 200 inspectors and clerical staff that work for the Housing Department. Mr. Clifton's contribution played a big part in the Housing Department's Systematic Code Enforcement Program winning the "Innovation in American Government" award considered the "Oscar" of government from Harvard. He also served as Senior Plumbing Training Officer for the Department of Building and Safety for over seven years instructing over 700 inspectors. He left the City of Los Angeles after 21 years of service. Mr. Clifton has also taught Plumbing Code for the Plumbing, Heating, Cooling, Contractor Association of the Greater Los Angeles Area and the North Orange County Regional Occupation Program over the past 20 years.

YOUR HVAC RESOURCE CENTER

The image shows a detailed form titled "Residential Plans Examiner Review Form for HVAC System Design (Loads, Equipment, Ducts)". The form is organized into several sections: "HVAC LOAD CALCULATION (IRC M1401.3)", "HVAC EQUIPMENT SELECTION (IRC M1601.1)", and "HVAC DUCT DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM DESIGN (IRC M1601.1)". Each section contains various input fields for design parameters, equipment specifications, and duct system details. The form also includes a header for project information and a table for tracking the status of different sections. The ACCA logo is visible in the top corners.

Residential Plans Examiner's HVAC Review Form

This form was developed to support an AHJ that desires to enforce the required HVAC system design process (see IRC M1401.3 and M1601.1). The form consolidates key information so you can provide an independent, simple, and quick evaluation of objective aspects in the HVAC system's design. To download a free copy, visit www.acca.org/codes. The form can be customized with your logos, contact, and other information for your internal use.

You can purchase these essential code reference materials (ACCA Manual J, S, & D) for your library at www.acca.org/store. Also look at Bob's House, written for code officials, this is the illustrated guide through the residential HVAC design process.
